General:

Part 1:

Video opens with Scott searching his screen for viewers.

Amanda walks in, does a cheeky grin to camera.

Scott says they woke up in Melksham this morning, following his solo show at The Village Pump in Trowbridge the night before. They only just made it home for Big Neet In by the skin of a Grandpa McGlumpher tomato after their 200 mile+ trip.

They stopped in Moreton-in-Marsh and Leamington Spa on their way back to Barnsley.

Scott thanks tonight’s guest, the very dapper Thomas Benjamin Wild Esq. as Amanda carries out her customary puppet bedtime routine.

A few shout outs follow, and on the chat thread viewers are talking about the internet buffering.

Scott starts playing Thin Lizzy’s Waiting For An Alibi, before the aftershow crashes abruptly.

Part 2:

This clip is very brief due to internet connectivity issues. Scott says he’s going to get on to TalkTalk tomorrow about it.

Part 3:

Scott does a recap of shout-outs from Part 1 in case people got cut off before hearing them.

He plays Dancing In The Dark by Bruce Springsteen.

Someone thinks tonight's meteor shower may be causing the internet issues.

Next up it's Huey Lewis' The Power Of Love.

As Scott shows a close-up of his badge with the slogan "There's such power in your weirdness", the internet crashes again.

Part 4:

A gentleman by the name of Richard Woodward has been watching from New York, so Scott plays Kim Wilde's Kid's In America, for him.

He then goes and sits next to Amanda and mentions some upcoming shows.

A Doonifan gave Amanda some 'Mini Morris the Caterpillar' cupcakes in Trowbridge last night.

Conversation turns to Thomas Benjamin Wild Esq. again. Scott encourages people to check him out on social media.

The pair say goodnight.

N.B. There was a very short pre-show tonight, but the clip was removed from Facebook almost immediately.
